Apprenticeship is industry-driven career training. Industry determines the skills that are essential to sustain a quality workforce.

- A. Apprenticeships may last from one to six years (occupation dependent). During this time, apprentices work and learn under the direction of experienced journey workers. Over time, apprentices are provided the diversity and complexity of training that leads to becoming highly skilled in their chosen occupations. At the successful completion of the apprenticeship, they become skilled, certified journey-level workers and receive a nationally recognized certificate.
- B. There are currently two registered apprenticeship programs approved for the Oklahoma Department of Corrections. Each apprenticeship program, to be eligible for registration, must submit a set of training standards to the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training for approval. Apprenticeship standards must be in conformity with Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations § 29, which govern employment and training in apprenticeship occupations. Programs have been approved to train inmates utilizing the apprenticeship method at the following facilities:
