Inmate Authority Over Other Inmates

It is prohibited for any inmate or group of inmates to be given authority or control over any other inmate or facility security functions. (4-4182) This prohibition will be considered for all inmate activities related to, but not necessarily limited to, classification, work details, access to library facilities and services, recreational activities, educational opportunities, preparation of facility reports and correspondence, and medical services. Palliative care inmate volunteers may be assigned to assist inmates who are in need of support, companionship, or are no longer able to independently carry out activities of daily living as specified in OP-140146 entitled "Palliative Care Program."

I. General Guidelines

Any employee uncertain of the appropriateness of an inmate performing a specific task should receive clarification from the facility head prior to assigning inmates to the task in question. The following are examples of approved and unapproved activities:

A. Approved Tasks

1. Shelving library books, pulling library books and cards, card cataloging and checking books in and out of library.
2. Cleaning (vacuuming, dusting, mopping) and performing janitorial duties.
3. Assisting in setting up furniture and equipment in classrooms, libraries, and office areas.
4. General Typing

General typing of memos, lists, etc. may be approved as long as the work is always reviewed by the supervisor and the typing does not include information of a sensitive or personal nature about staff, volunteers, or another inmate (e.g., earned credits, time reports, classification information, staff/volunteers home addresses, social security numbers, driver's license numbers, etc.).

5. General Filing

General filing will be allowed but the same rules apply as those for general typing above (i.e., inmates will not be allowed to file or have access to material of a sensitive nature which concerns staff, volunteers or another inmate, to include Requests to Staff and educational records).

6. Typing and handling legal documents while assisting other inmates in the research of legal issues. Inmates may not retain the legal documents, in any form, of another inmate and may not offer legal advice.

7. Assisting other inmates in finding legal information.

8. Assisting in the inventory of materials but only while under constant supervision.

9. Editing and publishing institutional newspapers under staff supervision.

10. Photocopying in law library only or under direct supervision elsewhere in the facility as long as the supervisor reviews all work and the copying does not include information of a sensitive or personal nature about staff, volunteers, or another inmate (e.g., information regarding earned credits, time reports, classification information, staff/volunteers home address, social security numbers, etc.).

11. Serving as referees/umpires in athletic events, or in other supervised and trained functions in the recreational area.

12. Inmates may provide information to other inmates in approved peer facilitated groups; however, this will not be construed to infer any supervisory authority of one inmate over another.

13. Inmates may serve as a second-language interpreter for other inmates upon request of staff.

14. Inmates in therapeutic community programs may do inspection reports according to their assigned therapeutic community roles and provide instruction to other inmates concerning work duties and performance.

B. Unapproved Tasks

1. Timing, administering, grading tests/daily school work.
2. Access to any educational records.
3. Typing counts, incident reports, facility emergency phone lists, or items that could be classified as security related.
4. Calculating earned credits, typing earned credit reports, or performing any clerical task which is in any way related to the inmate earned credit program.
5. Handling any mail prior to review and approval by recipient.
6. General errand running in maximum security institutions. In medium, minimum and community security facilities, inmates may be allowed to run errands but only in support (non-security) areas and only to the extent of picking up and delivering non-sensitive items (e.g., supplies, order forms, etc.). Such activity will be closely supervised and monitored.
7. Answering telephones, except for community security inmates assigned to answer telephones as their regular work duties.
8. Preparing inmate payrolls or assisting in their preparation in any way.
9. Typing tool control or caustic inventory.
10. Reconciling receipts/invoices.
11. Preparing invoices or bills.
12. Participating in sales or record keeping within canteen operations without direct supervision.
13. Supervising the work of other inmates.
14. Handling, in any manner, information about Department of Corrections (ODOC) employees or volunteers.
15. Handling, in any manner, information sent to ODOC by victims.
16. Having access to any government agency database, which contains information on state employees or inmates.

17. Using a computer with modems, without firewalls or other programs used to prevent access to the internet, as certified by Information Technology.

C. Exceptions to Unapproved Tasks

Oklahoma Correctional Industries (OCI) operations involve several unique circumstances that may warrant an exception to those unapproved tasks, as these exceptions will not create a security issue when properly supervised and implemented. Therefore, inmates working in OCI operations may be approved to perform the following tasks, if required by their assigned job duties:

1. They are authorized to work with documents received by mail after an OCI staff person has opened the mail and determined that the contents are only applicable to OCI inmate authorized clerical duties and do not involve any matter which would be sensitive or security-related.
2. Inmates may be used to run errands within or between OCI operations when the errand is necessary for the proper functioning of the operation.
3. Inmates are permitted to answer the telephone and place calls when it is part of their assigned tasks such as customer service, telemarketing, and clerical functions, and when such duties are not the responsibility of an ODOC employee. The customer service and telemarketing functions will be set up with equipment for routine monitoring of phone calls by staff.
4. Inmates are permitted to photocopy work-related documents in OCI operations without constant supervision.
5. Inmates are permitted to perform material inventory counts in OCI operations with constant supervision.
6. Inmates may prepare the payroll forms and evaluation sheets up to the point where inmate work hours and evaluations are recorded. Inmates may not record hours worked, evaluations, or assist in the computation of inmate pay.
7. Inmates may count raw materials received and record such information on receiving documents for OCI staff review and approval. Inmates may not be used to complete job duties or perform any function that is the duty of an ODOC employee.
8. Inmates may prepare "Bills of Lading" for OCI product shipments.

9. Inmates may assist other inmates in the performance of their duties; however, this will not be construed to infer any supervisory authority of one inmate over another.
10. Any handling, in any manner, of information about ODOC employees such as data entry, etc., by OCI inmates will only occur with the specific written approval of the agency director.
11. It is permissible that OCI record conversion operations perform work for other state agencies on general records that may contain information on state employees and inmates such as vehicle registration, employment security wage reports, etc.
12. It is permissible for OCI records conversion operations to perform work on closed inmate records.
13. Inmates will be allowed, under staff supervision, to use computers when required in the performance of work-related activities such as retrieval of technical data purchase procedure information, etc. At no time will inmates be allowed access to the internet.
14. Inmates working in OCI operations will be allowed, under staff supervision, to type count sheets after staff has completed the count and prepared notes to indicate the proper count. In no case will an inmate do the actual recording of the count.

D. Regimented Treatment Programs

The inmate mentoring role in the therapeutic community is under strict supervision of staff and will be closely monitored to ensure there is no abuse of that role.

1. Inmates may be assigned as department heads in the therapeutic community hierarchy and will ensure that the task assigned to that department is completed.
2. An inmate may do inspection reports and provide instruction to other inmates concerning work duties and performance.

E. Substance Abuse Programs

Inmates that provide clerical assistance, act as mentors, or serve in other similar roles must be under the strict supervision of the program director or staff designee. A program cannot exceed two inmate mentors for every staff member conducting a group.

1. Inmates may perform various clerical tasks that do not allow them access to confidential information. Inmate mentors cannot lead programmatic groups without supervision of staff.

2. Certain program participants may remain in the program after successful completion and serve as role models or mentors. Each facility/program must document the specific job duties, eligibility criteria and selection process for retaining inmate mentors.
3. Inmate program leadership roles will not be interpreted to allow any supervisory influence of one inmate over another.

F. Education Programs

Inmates that serve as tutors, orderlies, translators, etc., are under strict supervision of the correctional teacher II or staff designee. The number of these positions will be relative to the capacity of the program. An educational program cannot exceed two inmate mentors for every staff member conducting class.

1. Inmates may perform various clerical tasks, but cannot have access to confidential information or student records. Inmate mentors or tutors cannot lead educational instruction classes.
2. Inmates may serve as translators and provide tutoring to other inmates concerning class assignments and homework. Each facility/educational program must document the specific job duties, eligibility criteria and selection process for retaining inmate mentors.
3. Inmates providing assistance to the education program will not be interpreted as having supervisory authority of one inmate over another.
4. Inmate tutors may not grade student work and may not have access to tests or inmate grades.
